Assisting recovery from the scars of torture and refugee trauma is a crucial component of successful refugee resettlement in high income Western countries. The 1st Australia and New Zealand Refugee Trauma Recovery in Resettlement Conference in Sydney, Australia, 29-31 March 2017, will explore the complementary role and challenges of specialist torture and trauma agencies, health services, settlement services, English and employment programs, education institutions, the community sector and policy makers, in promoting trauma recovery and successful cultural transition and integration into society.

Innovative individual and community based refugee trauma recovery interventions will be showcased by presenters from around Australia, New Zealand and the world, in plenary and 7 themed oral paper presentation sessions, and 7 pre-conference workshops. The unique conference format will also give delegates the opportunity to discuss important issues with expert panels in 7 themed round table discussions focused around key topics of interest, and hear from people from refugee backgrounds who have rebuilt their lives in a resettlement country. The conference will conclude with a plenary 'Q&A' style panel of star national and international experts, policy makers and consumers.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND

Workers, students and volunteers working in settlement services, health and counselling services, schools, English language and employment programs, councils, government policy and the community and welfare sectors.
